Supporting Angkor Hospital for Children

2011 ANNUAL REPORT

MESSAGE FROM THE FOUNDER

The year 2011 was filled with many accomplishments for Friends Without A Border. In December we celebrated an auspicious milestone at Angkor Hospital for Children. Early that morning, a young girl named Alya was brought to the hospital by her mother. Our triage team burst out in smiles when it was clear that she would be our One Millionth Patient. With Alya's successful outpatient treatment that day, Angkor Hospital for Children set a new record of success.

No one could be prouder than I am about that success. When we first organized Friends Without A Border in the U.S. and Japan in the mid-1990s, it seemed impossible that the "little hospital with the big heart" would grow in size and importance as quickly as it did. The chart here shows how steady our growth has been. And while the number of patients treated is one way to measure impact, our expansion of services is another. Their addition, year after year, now means that our talented staff continues to treat common childhood illnesses that are so prevalent and dangerous in Southeast Asia, but also do everything from setting broken bones to teaming with visiting specialists to perform open heart surgery.

The heart of the Friends dream was to establish an internationally regarded pediatric teaching hospital in

KENRO IZU

Cambodia that would feature Cambodian doctors, nurses, and managers in charge.

In 2011 we took a large step toward that goal when the Board of Directors of Friends set in motion the transition to local governance. If things proceed according to plan, in January 2013 Friends Without A Border will convey responsibility for and control of Angkor Hospital for Children to a new NGO as an interim step to self-management in the coming years. Dr. Bill Housworth will continue as Executive Director of AHC, with Cambodian heads of medicine, surgery, nursing, education, and other crucial functions serving alongside him as members of the management team. Friends will continue to be a major source of support for AHC.

Cambodia's Minister of Health, His Excellency Dr. Mam Bun Heng, says that he considers Angkor Hospital for Children "one of only three essential healthcare institutions" in the country. (It is, in addition, the only pediatric hospital on that list.)

Other news from 2011 that I am happy to call out:

- Within days of the catastrophic earthquake and tsunami that struck Japan on March 11, Cambodian-American supporters in the Washington DC area contacted us and asked, "The Japanese people have done so much for AHC and for Cambodia. We want to help them now. What can we do?" Friends helped to raise nearly $100,000 for relief organizations serving the children affected in Japan.
- In 2007 founding AHC director Jon Morgan established a boat-based medical care organization called The Lake Clinic. Using specially outfitted watercraft, Lake Clinic staff travel for up to six days at a time to reach the woefully overlooked and underserved families living in the floating villages of the Tonle Sap. Jon's insightful model for getting to people who have no way to get to us earned our support last year, specifically to screen, treat, and triage many of the 5,000 children reached. The Lake Clinic is an elegant extension of our work in Cambodia, where leading staff members at AHC are also involved.

- Following a two-day retreat by the Board of Directors, with the transition to self-reliance at AHC under way, Friends agreed to conduct exploratory visits to Lao and Myanmar to replicate the model that has made AHC so successful. By the end of this year we will have news about the potential expansion of our work into other parts of Southeast Asia with all or part of our "treatment + education + prevention" framework.

It was a big year. You helped to make it so. Stay with us as we keep going with our mission of "healing children, healing Cambodia" and find new ways to make a difference in the world.

FRIENDS WITHOUT A BORDER

Founded by Japanese photographer Kenro Izu, Friends Without A Border is a New York-based nonprofit organization committed to improving the health and welfare of disadvantaged children in Asia.

Friends, established in 1996 to construct and support Angkor Hospital for Children, a leading pediatric hospital providing medical care to children in Cambodia, has raised more than $30 million from 10,000 friends through photography auctions, community events, and private philanthropy.

Shortly after Friends Without A Border came to exist and Cambodian-Americans became aware of its mission, individuals in several communities stepped forward and asked to help. Friends Without A Border is grateful for the Friends of Friends chapters that exist in the New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and Lowell MA areas. Over the years Friends of Friends chapters have raised over $560,000 from hundreds of loyal participants.

At lively benefit dinners and community gatherings, they advance our cause and support the care and treatment, education, and public health programs on the ground...for many, in fact, in the very regions of their own childhoods or those of family members. Our chapters in Philadelphia and New York attracted record numbers of guests and contributions in 2011.

Healing Cambodia Award to Bernie Krisher

Journalist and humanitarian Bernard Krisher became the inaugural recipient of the Healing Cambodia Award on April 14, 2011, at the Friends Without A Border Ninth Annual Gala in New York City.

Mr. Krisher's contribution to the restoration of civil society in post-war Cambodia is unparalleled. He drew forth the assistance of many influential persons he met during his long career as a journalist to attract funding to rebuild Cambodia after decades of war and privation. Mr. Krisher established American Assistance for Cambodia and Japan Relief for Cambodia in 1993 and is the founding publisher of The Cambodia Daily, the national nonprofit newspaper devoted to a free press. The list of Mr. Krisher's initiatives also includes Sihanouk Hospital Center of HOPE, Rural Schools Project, and more. He was named one of TIME Asia's Heroes in an October 2005 profile entitled, "A Can-Do Yank in Cambodia."

Friends of Friends Photography Auction

The art community was the original source of support for Friends and AHC.

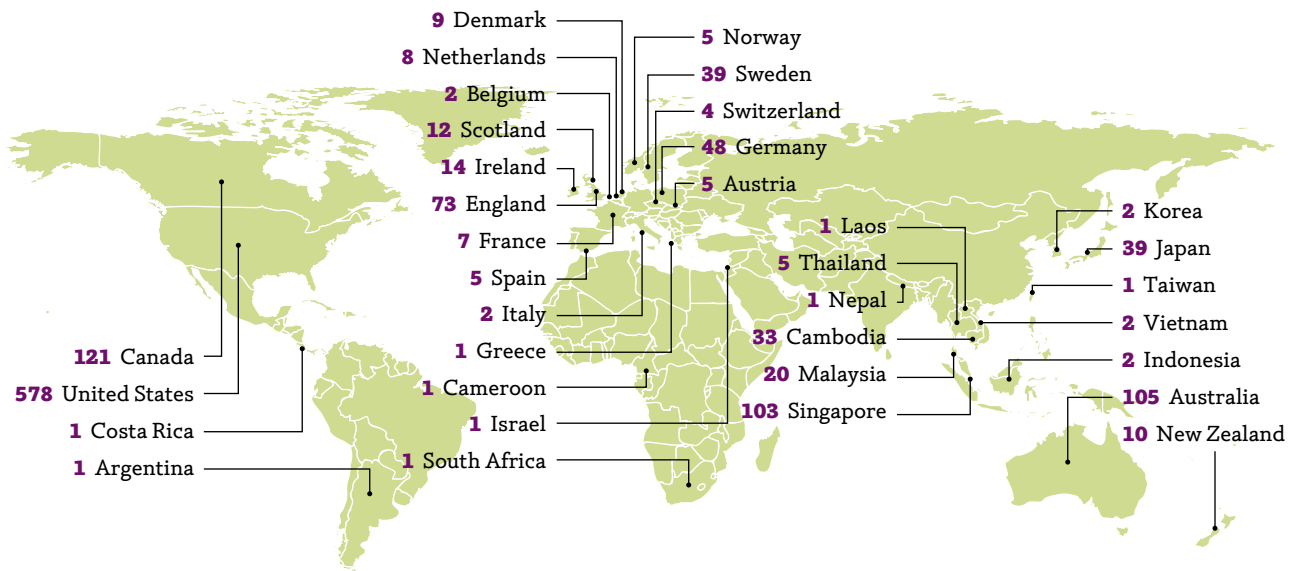

An integral part of the enduring relationship has been the Friends of Friends Photography Auction, first held in 1997. In the years since, hundreds of artists and their representatives have generously donated their work to the auction. Over the past thirteen years the photography auction has raised nearly $2 million. This year's auction will be held on Tuesday, December 4, 2012, at the Metropolitan Pavilion and will feature the work of internationally acclaimed photographers, many of whom are donors themselves.

Friends World Circle

Volunteers embody the spirit of service. Sponsored by friends and co-workers or at their own expense altogether, they travel to Siem Reap to share their expertise, knowledge, and compassion with staff and patients alike. In 2011, 193 medical specialists, educators, administrators, and other experts came to AHC from 18 countries. Many who participate in the volunteer program return year after year and continue to support us back at home by raising funds and awareness about AHC and the healthcare needs of Cambodian children. The map shows the reach of Friends World Circle over the years.

The Low Acuity Unit is the vital bridge between extended stays in the IPD and the return home for children with chronic conditions. The LAU served 1,012 patients and their families in 2011.

Emergency Room

The Surgical Department performs orthopedic, urological, and plastic surgeries as well as cleft palate repair, amounting to more than 1,000 major surgeries since 1999. It is the only facility in Cambodia offering affordable treatments for congenital heart disease.

Medical Education Center

Most children in Cambodia have poor oral hygiene practices. In addition to providing dental care and oral surgery to more than 11,625 patients in 2011, AHC's Dental Clinic distributed 25,000 toothbrushes and provided in-village training on proper brushing and oral hygiene. Much-needed renovations, completed in June 2011, were made possible by the Sumar and Lakhani Family Foundation.

TREATMENT

Since opening in 1999, more than 1,000,000 children have received high-quality, compassionate care at AHC. The hospital offers outpatient, inpatient, emergency, surgical, dental, and ophthalmologic care to more than 400 girls and boys each day. AHC also offers physiotherapy, as well as radiology, pharmacy, and laboratory services. The hospital has won the respect of local, national, and international organizations, the support of donors from around the world, and, most important, the trust of patients and their families.

The staff uses the time that families spend at AHC to full advantage, taking the opportunity to inform families about a variety of health issues. AHC's Nutrition Program, generously funded by Abbott Laboratories and Direct Relief International, provided invaluable hands-on nutrition education and support in 2011.

One-year-old Para was admitted with severe malnutrition. Para and his five siblings live with their impoverished single aunt, and Para was fed only watery porridge until he was 8 months old. His aunt brought him to AHC with general edema, itching, skin inflammation, and vomiting. After being hospitalized for 11 days, Para's skin improved and he gained more than ten percent of his body weight.

AHC's HIV/Homecare team made more than 2,956 home visits in 2011 to care for patients whose remote locations make it impossible to receive ongoing care at AHC—for HIV/AIDS, congenital heart disease, cerebral palsy, and malnutrition. AHC is the largest program outside Phnom Penh providing lifesaving antiretroviral therapy to the HIV-positive children who make up

Patient Story: A Child from Ratanakiri

Sreyneth, a one-month-old girl from Ratanakiri Province, was transported 400 miles to the hospital with an abscess on her thigh caused by a routine vaccination. Although the journey was long and expensive, Sreyneth's mother followed her family's recommendation to bring her to AHC for treatment, as no comparable facility was closer. Sreyneth was admitted into the surgical ward at AHC, and her operation was successful. Her mother spent the night in the waiting area and spoke with the doctor the next day.

Sreyneth and her family are among the many patients at AHC who travel great lengths for quality care. Our Satellite and Homecare program extend AHC's reach, reducing physical and financial stress and accelerating treatment.

EDUCATION

While the hospital responds to immediate pediatric healthcare needs, the Medical Education Center prepares new generations of healthcare professionals to address those needs in the future. Part of the tragic legacy left to Cambodia after decades of war and privation was the utter lack of healthcare personnel, medical training programs, and a functional medical infrastructure.

MEC provides education and training for AHC staff and for healthcare professionals throughout the region. In 2011, 7,150 doctors, nurses, paramedical staff, and administrators trained at MEC, renowned for programs ranging from long-term pediatric residency to WHO-endorsed training courses. By producing professionals with the skills to not only practice but teach, we are helping to move Cambodian healthcare toward self-sustainability.

Highlight: Nursing Program

Exceptional nursing care has a direct influence on patient healing and overall experience. The nursing staff at AHC is constantly upgrading its knowledge and skills through weekly nurse-led presentations, physician-led lectures, national and international conferences, and a journal club where senior nurses and visiting international volunteers present relevant new literature.

2011 marked the tenth year of collaboration between AHC and the Cambodian Ministry of Health on a national campaign to improve the knowledge and clinical skills of nursing students and instructors throughout the country. 453 nursing students, from all five nursing schools in Cambodia, participated in the programs at MEC, and 477 nursing instructors and preceptors completed basic and advanced refresher courses in nursing. For most, MEC is their first opportunity for hands-on patient care as they work alongside established medical professionals.

Reverend Homyo Saito, In Memoriam

The Medical Education Center would not exist without the generosity and devotion of Reverend Homyo Saito of Horyuji Temple of the Nakayama Shigoshoshu sect in Hiroshima. Born in Hiroshima in 1925, Rev. Saito began her religious life after witnessing the devastation caused by the atomic bomb. She once shared with us that, “As a human being who was given the chance to live, I have to find ways to make use of this life I was given. There is no border between the hearts of people.”

Rev. Saito recognized not only the need to provide excellent care to sick children but also to train others to do the same. She and her late son Reverend Gensho Saito funded the construction of MEC, and its success is a tribute to their great dedication to the project. Reverend Homyo Saito passed away in May 2012 at the age of 86. Her legacy will continue for many generations in the talents of future Cambodian doctors and nurses trained at MEC.

PREVENTION

A staggering number of AHC's patients suffer from preventable and treatable illness, including respiratory infection, diarrhea, and diseases virtually eradicated in the developed world. In response to these challenges, the Capacity Building and Health Education Program works directly with rural public health centers to improve preventive health practices.

November 2011 saw the launch of a new CBHEP program that seeks to prevent and reduce malnutrition among mothers and infants. In addition to data collection through rural health centers, the pilot project will establish mother support groups and nutrition counseling. We salute Jane Bernstein and Bob Ellis of San Francisco for their leadership and generosity.

Launched in 2001, CBHEP now serves a catchment area of 250,000 rural villagers with a widespread team of 1,228 village health volunteers. Using nonformal learning principles, CBHEP staff and volunteers are creating a healthier Cambodia. With support from the Sjøvegan High School in Norway and the Yahoo! Employee Foundation, our team has also installed 3,519 water filters and provided training on the maintenance of the filter systems in 55 villages.

The monsoon season of 2011 was one of the most destructive in a decade. The floods displaced hundreds of thousands of Cambodians and multiplied the spread of waterborne illness, dengue fever, and malaria. Despite knee-high water that covered Siem Reap, AHC remained dry and open for business. CBHEP quickly initiated a Flood Emergency Fund to reach 330 families who had lost homes, farms, access to food and sanitized water, and their livelihoods.

AHC SATELLITE

The AHC Satellite, which celebrated its first anniversary in February 2011, was established to improve healthcare options for patients in remote villages and to reduce complications that ensue from long journeys to the hospital. On the grounds of a government referral hospital in Sot Nikum, a high-needs district 45 minutes from Siem Reap City, the growing facility has extended the AHC's reach in the region, treating more than 26,000 patients since opening its doors, and piloting a new partnership with the adjacent government hospital. We salute Planet Wheeler Foundation and the Cassils-Wettstein Asia Fund for their original and sustained support of the Satellite.

The first fully equipped, standard ambulance for transfer of patients from the Satellite to AHC was made possible by John and Nina Cassils in November 2011. The inaugural transfer in the ambulance was made by a 10-year-old boy who had extensive lacerations from a wild boar attack and who was brought to Sot Nikum by ox cart. He needed surgery, so his next transfer was not by cart but in the new ambulance with modern equipment and a secure, sanitary environment.

THE LAKE CLINIC

The Lake Clinic-Cambodia (TLC) was established in 2007 by founding AHC director Jon Morgan to provide basic healthcare and health education to isolated and underserved families living in floating villages on the Tonle Sap, Southeast Asia's largest lake, and its tributaries.

For those families, travel is possible only by boat and healthcare can be more than 100 kilometers away. In its four years of operation, TLC has expanded to serve 13 villages encompassing 30,000 individuals. Most are destitute, all are extremely poor, and their isolation from society is virtually absolute.

Friends Without A Border recognizes TLC as an opportunity to reach families who cannot reach us. TLC's boat-based clinics represent the only sustained attempt at delivering care, treatment, and prevention to thousands of otherwise ignored families. We began supporting the project in 2011 and are proud to be part of this uncommon endeavor.

"In 1994 I journeyed by boat from Phnom Penh to Siem Reap for the first time. This was still during the days of Cambodia's post-UN civil war—when each political party had its own army; before the Khmer Rouge were fully pacified, and when both roads and waterways were being closely observed by hungry people with guns.

"It was then that I had my first impression of just some of the floating villages found on the Tonle Sap. Within the same photo frame children were defecating into the lake's water while others swam and some washed the family dishes. Swollen bellies either from malnutrition or worms were evident everywhere. I turned to my wife and said, 'This is a nightmare.'

"It was thirteen years later when I possessed the experience, skills, and access to intellectual assistance that I lacked in 1994 that I was finally in a position to return to the Tonle Sap and bring to those villages some of the health services and education that are so greatly needed."

DR. KAMACHI AWARDS

AHC held its second annual ceremony to present the "AHC Dr. Kamachi Awards." Hospital staff are asked to nominate co-workers from outside their own departments for two categories, Dedicated Hard Worker and Most Compassionate Worker. Awards were presented to eight staff members who were singled out by their peers for exemplifying those attributes. Dr. Bill Housworth, Executive Director, and Christopher Hest, CEO of Friends, congratulated the winners and acknowledged everyone's commitment to those standards of performance.
